"What find you better or more honorable than age? Take the preeminence of it in everthing; in an old friend, in old wine, in an old pedigree."

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

For courtesies and much information which is included in this article thanks are due to several members of the Families of Carter and Taylor and to the well known Tennessee historians, Judge Samuel Cole Williams of Johnson City, Tennessee and Miss Zella Armstrong, of Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Members of the Carter Family who assisted materially in the preparation of the Carter records are:

Mrs. J. Frank Seiler, Elizabethton, Tennessee.
Mrs. Delia Carter Kyle, Knoxville, Tennessee.
Mrs. Robert Burns, St. Louis, Mo.
Judge Hu Lawson McClung, Knoxville, Tennessee.
John Alfred Brewer, Bristol, Tennessee.

Members of the Taylor Family who generously assisted in the preparation of the Taylor record are:

Ex. Governor Alfred A. Taylor of Tennessee.
Mrs. Rhoda Taylor Reeves, Abingdon, Va.
Mrs. George F. St. John, Harriman, Tenn.
(daughter of the late Gov. Robert L. Taylor.)

Also many histories, documents, family letters, and county and state records have been carefully consulted.

The Carter Family Article Originally Appeared in The Lookout, Chattanooga, Tenn., and in Extended Form Will Be Included in Notable Southern Families Volume VI.

CARTER OF TENNESSEE

The Carter Family of Tennessee is one of the most distinguished in the history of the State. Many Governors and Senators are in the descending line from Colonel John Carter the Founder of the Family in Tennessee. and almost innumerable members have occupied other high offices. while many have achieved distinction as musicians, artists and orators.

COLONEL JOHN CARTER

Colonel John Carter, Founder of the Family in Tennessee, was a leader in pioneer days. He was born in Virginia in 1737. He came into what we now know as Tennessee at a very early date and soon attained leadership in the community in which he lived. He was settled on Boone's Creek as early as 1769. He was one of the famous Thirteen Commissioners of Watauga in 1772 and was chairman of the Watauga Court which consisted of himself and four others. It is said that he drafted the Articles of Association of Watauga. He was chairman of the first court in Washington County. He signed the Watauga Petition and when North Carolina accepted the Petition and created Washington District, John Carter, John Sevier and Charles Robertson were its first representatives in the North Carolina Legislature. One year later Gov. Martin of North Carolina appointed John Carter Colonel Commanding the County. Carter's Valley is called for him and

CARTER

Carter County was named for his son. When he first came into the country he was a merchant with William Parker. The store of Parker and Carter was robbed by Indians who later made reparation by granting an enormous body of land to them, the entire valley called "Carter's Valley" running from Cloud's Creek to Chimney Top Mountain.

Col. Carter married while he was still in Virginia, about 1758, Elizabeth Taylor and from that time the Carters and Taylors have intermarried until a bewildering maze of kinship exists in all branches of the two families.

He died in or before the year 1781 in Washington County, Tennessee. as his estate was administered in that year by his son Landon Carter. The estate was the largest west of the Alleghanys at that period and for many years thereafter.

COLONEL LANDON CARTER

So far as the records show Col. John Carter had but one child: Landon Carter of Tennessee. He is so designated to distinguish him from the several Landon Carters of Virginia who were his kinsmen. He was born in Virginia Jan. 29, 1760. He was educated at Liberty Hall, N. C. (now Davidson College). He died January 5, 1808.

He participated with his father in all the activities of Watauga. and was prominent in the Revolution. He served as a Captain under Col. John Sevier and Col. Arthur Campbell. He signed the Watauga Petition to have that settlement annexed to North Carolina. He was in the battles of King's Mountain and Boyd's Creek. On the death of his father in 1781 he was made administrator of his estate which was the largest in North Carolina west of the Alleghany Mountains. In 1782 at the age of twenty-two he was appointed by the legislature of North Carolina, auditor of Washington District. In 1781 he was made trustee of Martin Academy (later Washington College). He was in command of a company under John Sevier in the South Carolina campaign in 1781 and fought under Gen. Francis Marion until January 1782. In 1784 he represented Washington County in the lower house of the North Carolina Legislature. He was a strong supporter of John Sevier and the State of Franklin. He was secretary of the first Franklin Convention at Jonesboro: speaker of the first Franklin Senate; member of the first Council of State and later Secretary of State and entrytaker.

Gov. William Blount of the Territory South of the Ohio River among his first acts appointed him Lieutenant Colonel Commandant of the Washington District Militia. Later he was elected treasurer of Washington and Hamilton Districts of the Territory which place he held until the creation of the State of Tennessee.

He represented Washington County in the first Constitutional Convention of the State of Tennessee. In 1834 his son, William Blount Carter, was president of the second state constitutional Convention of Tennessee. His grandson William B. Carter, Jr., was a member of the convention of 1870. Thus the family name is connected with the fundamental law of Tennessee from the Articles of the Watauga Association and the State of Franklin down to the latest Constitutional Convention, that of 1870.

CARTER

The first legislature of Tennessee created the county of Carter and named it for Landon Carter and the county seat for his wife Elizabeth. He died January 5, 1808 and is buried in the old Carter cemetary near Elizabethton and in sight of the home of his father.
